be remedied, says Postmaster Collins.

careful in mailing their letters.

mails, has a number of letters and postal cards without stamps and addresses on display in the show win-

URGENT NEED OF BACKING SCOUT WORK STRESSED

Plays Large Part in Development of Boy Into Stable Manhood.

FIELD EXECUTIVE SPEAKS

R. F. Seymour Urges That Parents
Rally to Support of Local Council in Connellsville; Others Endorse Movement; Officers Are Re-Elected.

The need of a stronger Boy Scout organization in Connellsville was laid before the audience attending the reorganization meeting of the Local Council Monday night at the Carnegie Free Library Hall. R. F. Seymour, field scout executive of Harrisburg,
addressed the gathering, strongly endorsing the Scout movement.

Mr. Seymour showed his audience how Scout work is supplementing the home and school and causing less need for juvenile courts. The work develops a boy's natural bent he said and frequently aids him in making up his mind what sort of employment he will follow when he steps into the world after completing his schooling.

The urgent need for the backing of the parents and the necessity of having good men give their time to the work was stressed by the field executive. Mr. Seymour said boys should have interested and intelligent advancement, claiming the Boy Scout movement was the best agency in which to mold character.

The scout work, it was explained,
has greatly to do in molding the future citizens of the nation. The organization emphasizes discipline.
The credit for the strength of the organization was given to the scout-masters, busy men who took time enough to aid the boy to get a good start in life. The meaning of the scout oath and scout law were explained.

Rev. G. W. Buckner, who also spoke briefly, said it is the duty of scoutmasters for giving their time and effort for the benefit of the youth.
Rev. Dr. W. H. Hinchman also spoke.

Both speakers testified to the value of Scouting and expressed their willingness to aid the Local Council.
Following the speaking program, W.
Schneek, president of the Local Council, called for nomination of officers for the new term, but it was moved and seconded that the entire group of old officers remain for another term. The motion carried. The officers are: W. P. Schneek, president; John L. Gane, first vice-president; W.
L. Underwood, second vice-president;
Charles A. Crowley, secretary-treasurer;
R. C. W. Scott, scout commissioner.
Ralph P. Siler, James M. Southard
and J. H. Carpenter, deputy commissioners. The last named is newly elected.

Practically every person present at the meeting enrolled as a member of the Local Council and they were urged to take an active interest in the organization.

Captain Harry Dunn announced that at 2:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon Dr.
Simon S. Baker, president of Washington A. C. after dinner, would speak at Slavish Hall on the West Side under the auspices of the Greenwood Methodist Episcopal Church.
Dr. Baker is very much interested in scout work and his talk will be of special interest. Commissioner Will will make an effort to have a large turnout of Scouts present.

Five Killed in Italy.

Brother-in-Law of Murdered John DeSaulles and Suitor of Peggy Hopkins Joyce Ends Life

Because Peggy Hopkins Joyce refused to order Henri Letellier the richest man in France, to cease his attention to her, Galleme (Bill) Errazuriz, rich young Chilean and brother of Mrs. Blanca De Saulles, who killed her husband, John L. De Saulles six years ago in New York, ended his life by shooting in a hotel in Paris. He shot himself Sunday and died Monday. John L. DeSaulles was a son of the late Major A. B. De Saulles, who was at one time superintendent of the plant of the Dunbar Furnace Company, predecessor of the American Manganese Manufacturing Company.

"It was the only man I ever truly loved," declared Peggy Hopkins. "It was his mad jealousy that sent him to his death."

The young South American millionaire, before committing suicide, carefully masked the real reason for his act by writing notes to his mother and to the police, in which he declared:

"My fortune is gone. I die poorer than I was a pauper."

The fact that the Errazuriz family is notoriously the richest in Chile, coupled with the fact that for months
"Billy" and Henri Letellier have been rivals for Peggy's favors, led an interviewer to ask the "million dollar doll" for the truth of the tragedy.

Government Plan Does Not Embrace Strike Settlement

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, May 2.—Investigation by the Commerce Department into the underlying difficulties in the coal industry, such as intermittency of employment and irregularity of production, is being expedited, it was learned today, with a view to securing data which might be used in the proposed Administration plan for reorganizing the industry.

Plans of the Administration's plan for meeting the coal strike situation as divulged today in high official circles, indicated that these did not consider any specific proposal for the settlement of the present controversy but rather were concerned with remedies for the fundamental difficulties underlying the general coal situation.

PINCHOT SPEAKS TO SMALL CROWD AT SOISSON THEATRE

A small crowd gathered at the Soisson Theatre between 12:30 and 1 o'clock today to hear Gifford Pinchot, former state forester, and candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The Pinchot party, on a hundred tour of Western Pennsylvania, stopped off here for lunch and then made a brief talk afterwards. The program had been arranged by the local branch of the Pinchot Campaign Committee.

He was preceded on the platform by David P. Barrett who flayed the newspapers, especially those in Pittsburgh, contending they were controlled by the bosses. He said that now was the time to emancipate the state of Pennsylvania, "when men who have been our bosses, who in their graves or are unable to be about."

Pinchot said he not only wanted to be governor because it was an ambition of his but because he wanted the people to get a square deal. He wanted to "let in the light and clean up the mess" at Harrisburg, he said.
It was his desire, he continued, to prevent a little group of bosses from annoying that part of Pennsylvania not already annexed. It is his ambition to do for the state what he has done for the Department of Forestry, he declared.

"The organization is breaking up,"
he concluded. "Then and of members are daily coming over on the side of decent government."

Mayor Charles C. McClintock presided at the meeting, introducing the speakers.
Others on the stage were Rev.
P. J. Scott, Rev. J. Pinchot Kern and Mrs. Earl Van Dine. Mr. Pinchot expressed a desire to shake hands with all his audience and met everyone at the door as the crowd left the theatre.
The party is traveling by automobile.

What was looked upon this morning
as a concerted effort to force a "show down" on Sheriff Shaw's order pro-were in attendance, was averted by the no official statements were issued con-

MOUSE RAISING PERMITTED AT MT. PLEASANT

Council Falls in Effort to Over-ride Veto of Prohibitory Measure.

CUT IN EXPENSES URGED

Special to The Courier. MOUNT PLEASANT, May 2.—Moose: Pleasant folks may raise pigs—if they wish. The veto of Burgess William M. Overholt of a measure designed to prohibit porkers in the borough stands. Council failed in an effort last night to pass the measure over the executive's disapproval.

Council had numerous matters before it at a lengthy session. Complaint was made of the lack of sewer in Vaine street and the insanitary conditions arising. Complaint also was made relative to a sewer ditch in Morewood street. This has been filled with water. Recently a child toppled into it and was rescued only because of the presence of a witness to the accident.

The health officer was instructed to have clean-up notices posted over town.

Councilman S. C. Stevenson suggested that council bring about economy by dispensing with the service of the driver of the fire truck. Lloyd Shaw holds this position. Other towns, he said, get along without a paid driver. Shaw draws $1,000 a year. Councilmen James Olinger and William Miller were favorable to the Stevenson suggestion and the matter was referred to the fire, light and water committee.

Burgess Overholt was asked to enforce the ordinance prohibiting mailing of cards and bills on telephone and other poles.

Business men and residents of Main street are to be asked to sweep the street so that the refuse may be gathered Fridays by the borough truck force.

Council approved a good roads meeting at the borough building next Monday evening, at which every citizen of the community having the welfare of roads at heart is asked to be present.

The secretary was instructed to notify George Cooper to repair a broken flagstone in his driveway in Church street. Councilman Arthur Gearhart called attention to the ap-pear of funeral directors for repairs to the roads leading to St. Joseph's and the Slavish cemeteries.

Burgess Overholt reported 23 arrests for April and fines of $91.50. Penalties and licenses amount to $46, a total of $137.50. Councilman Stevenson complimented the burgess on the excellence of his report.

Miser's Leg Broken.

TUESDAY EVENING, MAY 2, 1932.

TIME FOR DISCRETION AND WISE COUNSEL.

If, as appears from advertised announcements, the leaders of the strike intend to have a "show down" on the issues involved in Sheriff Shaw's order prohibiting mass meetings attended by persons other than the members of the union resident in the immediate vicinity of the meeting, it is hoped wise counsel will prevail and no such attempt made as is scheduled for tomorrow at the Slavic Hall, West Side.

The declaration of a purpose to hold such a meeting, at which the visiting organizers are featured as the chief speakers, can be regarded as nothing less than a defiance of Sheriff Shaw's orders and contrary to the frequently repeated cautions of the organizers themselves when addressing the strikers to refrain from every form of disorder, violence or law-breaking. Still more, such a challenge to the authorities has within it such grave possibilities for trouble that every thoughtful person associated in any way with the men who have walked out of the mines should assert themselves to the utmost to prevent it. If they do not, the public must not be blamed if it form the impression that the protestations about law observance have not been made in good faith.

At the very inception of the strike
Sheriff Shaw gave due and formal notice that meetings of the union leaders would not be interfered with so long as peace and good order was maintained in the region. The organizers were accorded every privilege to come and go and to address the men on strike. At first these addresses were moderate and temperate in expressions and tone. Later they lost these qualities and took on the nature of harangues devoted to abuse of the employers and other utterances intended to excite prejudice and to inflame. The result has been several disorders culminating in the riot at Tower Hill No. 1 on Saturday.

This incident followed so closely upon the warning issued by Captain Smith of the State Police, that there would be no withdrawal of privileges given strike leaders if there was a repetition of such acts as had been committed at Tower Hill No. 2, Mil-bert and elsewhere where attempts had been made to prevent men going to work, that Sheriff Shaw had absolutely no alternative but to give force and effect to Captain Smith's warning. This was done by issuing a proclamation prohibiting mass meetings when attended by visitors or members from points distant from the place of meeting.

If the strike leaders feel aggrieved at this order, they have recourse to the courts but, in the interests of law observance, about which they have made so many declarations, they should themselves set an example for the law-abiding of the region. If they are unwilling or fail to do so the public will quickly lose confidence in their affirmations and will not hesitate to as quickly place upon them the responsibility for any further acts of intimidation or violence that may be committed.

For that reason it is not believed the organizers and their aids will afford to throw down the gauntlet to the government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as represented in the official persons of Sheriff Shaw and Captain Smith. It is, therefore, a time when discretion and wise counsel should prevail.

EXTENDING RADIO SERVICE.

The establishment of a daily radio broadcasting service by the State Department of Agriculture to supply market reports and other timely information for the benefit of farmers is interesting from several points of view. It shows the remarkable development of the most modern system of communication, the enterprise of the farmers of the state and the activity of the Department of Agriculture in bringing farmers in close touch with the latest advances in all that pertains to the promotion of agriculture.
The service is doing even more than the regular telephone to reduce the isolation of the farm, so long held as one of the disadvantages of living in rural communities. With the installation of a wireless receiving outfit the farmer's family can enjoy all the pleasures of city dwellers who are attendants at concerts, lectures and other forms of entertainment. They receive the same bulletins of the latest news, baseball scores and other items of interest that enable them to keep pace with the people in the large centers of population. The special market reports broadcasted from Harrington will comprise information of special value to farmers in that they will be fully posted as to the trend and conditions of the markets and enabled to make disposition of their products to the best advantage.

This is a privilege to which the farmer is entitled as a merchant and trader in any line of business. Heretofore the telephone has been utilized to some extent in this direction but it is less flexible in its operation than the radio. The latter at present is the greater novelty and because of the apparent mystery connected with its operation makes a stronger appeal to users. Moreover, it can be set up anywhere. No matter how remote from other means of communication and without having to wait for the extension of pole lines or other means of establishing connection with the central station of distribution.

The establishment of a broadcasting service at Harrisburg will stimulate the installation of radio sets in all rural sections of the state, not only for the purpose of making this service available but it will utilize the broadcasting stations which provide a musical and news service. Such an extension of radio communication is to be encouraged because of the wholesome benefits to be derived therefrom.

America's Anchorage

Philadelphia Ledger.

"I want to say to you, that the one everlasting anchorage of this Republic is in communities like this in which we are gathered. In the simple life of the hamlet and the village there is the typical, sturdy life of our America." — From President Harding's Grant Centennial address at Point Pleasant, O.

Even in this nation, that was once agricultural and that has become industrial, even in a country that has gathered six out of every ten of its people into its cities, the virtues of the President's statement will be recognized and accepted. He has come well to reminiscent of our cities of an everlasting truth. It is in the country towns, in "the hamlet and the village," yes, and in the deeper country, that the foundation America the old America, still lives.

So long as it dwells there the nation may count upon security. It does not matter much about the cities, stuffed with their undisciplined immigrants, jazz blaring on their eardrums, stinking with bootleg liquor and crammed with the heights of their bank clearings. "The hamlet and the village" and the back country are their foundation and support.

"Main street" is longer and wider than "Broadway." It is an inexhaust-ible source of courage, loyalty, determination, security, capacity and sometimes of genius. Without "Main street" and the back country our stalled avenues would still be tree-shadowed trails.

Mother Goose in
The Post Office

Among the many suggestions for improvement of the postal service already received by Postmaster Collins is one from a person of a position of mind who has arranged a number of valuable hints in the form of verse. This is entitled, "Mother Goose in the Post Office," a copy of which Postmaster Collins intends to forward to the Post Office Department at Washington. The verses follow:

"Mother Goose in the Post Office, Hickory, dickory, do!"
Mail letters by the clock!
When the clock strikes one
Have your mailing hand done,
Hickory, dickory, do!"
(Moral: Mail Early)

A dollar, a dollar, put up a holler
If your letters are not mailed soon!
Those you've signed by eleven o'clock
Should be dropped in the box by noon
(Moral: Mail Often)

Hickory, dickory, my fat hen
Lays her eggs for gentlemen,
The eggs are stored in a standard
crate,
And never yet have I had them break (Moral: Use only crates of the best manufacture.)

Humpty, Dumpty placed loose in a box
Humpty, Dumpty given hard knocks.
The most promptly settled indemnity
claim,
Can be made by an old lady (Moral: Eggs worth sending at all are worth crating well.)

Little Bo-Peep has lost her sheep
With tears she's nearly blinded,
She's mailed a jacket in a flimsy
packet,
And the P. O. is now trying to find it.
(Moral: Package your packages securely.)

Sing a song of sixpence, dishes made of glass,
Parrot not married "fragile" nor packed so it would last;
When the pack was opened—Mersey who's a mess!

The dishes all in shivers, whose fault? Well, make a guess.
(Moral: Pack carefully, mark properly, tell the mailing clerk)

Wire brain, lumber lock,
Letters handled in a flock;
Some go east, some go west—
Be sure they're legibly addressed (Moral: Address mail plainly and to street and number.)

Handy Spandy, Jack-a-Landy,
Sent his first money order;
Sent it and just quoted the weight,
Candy reached her ten days late.
(Moral: See that the correct postage is paid when mailing.)

There was a man in our town and he was wondrous wise;
He ordered only envelopes of regulation size
His friends thought it more stylish than the little ones he used;
But when their mail kept getting late,
They quickly changed in view (Moral: Don't use small-size envelopes)

Old Mother Hubbard was searching her cupboard
And the cat's paw failed to note
When she got there the cupboard was bare—
The cat had given up hope (Moral: Place a mail box at your door)

Little Miss Muffitt decided to rough it—
The wife who would to roam
Her folks were shocked, then
She wrote their P. M.
And now the young lady is home

There was a crooked man, he had a crooked son
Of making folks rich quick—it sounded like a dream
His vision he would nail by crook

And now he's doing time in a little

TWENTY YEARS.

Looking forward it seems
Oh, so long are twenty years!

Twenty years to work and wait,
Twenty years to battle fate
Twenty years to come to climb,
Seems too long a stretch of time

When at last success appears,
Swift were all those twenty years.
And their many hardships seem
But the pumkin of a dream.

Yesterday we braved a blow—
That was twenty years ago
Youth be patient as you climb
Swiftly move the hand of time

Many hopes and many fears
Turn to joy in twenty years

ALVERTON, May 2.—Mrs. William Frye was visiting friends in Rutledge Sunday afternoon.

BASEBALL CLUB ORGANIZED IN SCOTSDALE; FIRST ONE THERE IN 10 YEAR PERIOD

Mill Town Expects to Have Team of First Class on the Diamond.

HOCKENBURY IS MANAGER

By James M. Driscoll
Sporting Editor.

The Scottdale Baseball Association has organized a team for the 1932 season. It is expected that this aggregation, representing the Mill Town in semi-pro ranks this year, will measure up to the best in its class. The team will play Saturday and holiday games, both at home and abroad.

Russell Hockenbury is manager of the team and he is collecting an assortment of players well known for their ability on the diamond. He is confident of putting out a first class club.

It has been almost 10 years since Scottdale has been represented in the independent ranks by a baseball team. For many seasons the little Westmoreland county city was a leader in this branch of sports but the game gradually died out and for many seasons the fans have had to go elsewhere for their enjoyment.

M. J. Petolic is secretary of the organization and others on the board of directors includes W. J. Doorley, president; R. P. Percy, vice-president; Thomas D. Byrne, treasurer; P. M. McCudden, Ben Baldwin, C. F. Lewis, Quay King, H. F. Grant and Harry Porter.

The make-up of the team has not yet been announced but it is a known fact that the management is angling for some headliners in the independent ball world.

ROWERS' TRIPLE WINS FOR PITTSBURG PIRATES

The Pittsburgh Pirates played an up-hill game at Cincinnati yesterday and finally won, 7-6, over the Reds. The home outfit scored five runs in the opening frame and one in the second. The Adams took Morrison's place and held the opponents to scattered blows while his teammates collected a few tallies. The game was settled in the eighth when Rowers, batting for Adams, landed a triple and brought in McKan and Gooch.

The score by innings:

Cincinnati.....510 000 000—6 7 1

The Connelville Tennis Association's courts will be vacant Friday evening, and for good reason—the third annual banquet will be served in the Wright-Metzler cafeteria.

The Daily Courier is ready to supply managers of all amateur and semi-pro teams in the region with score sheets on which to make returns of the contests to this office.

All Flesh Is as Grass; All Bone as Limestone

"All flesh is as grass," wrote the Prophet Isaiah, and scientists are adding, "All bone is as limestone."

To produce the skeleton of a 1,000-pound steer, authorities at Ohio State University say, requires time equal to 40 pounds of limestone, in addition to acid phosphate, and to the lack of limestone in the soil is attributed the small stature of men.

The large boned man of fine physique is a product of soil containing large quantities of limestone.

RALPH SHINNERS IS SURE TO MAKE GOOD

Milwaukee Youth Works His Way to New York Giants.

Tried to Get Tryout With Brewers, but Owners Couldn't See—Developed into Real Star With Indianapolis Team.

Back in the spring of 1929 a Milwaukee boy tried to get a tryout with the Brewers. All he wanted was a chance to show his wares, but the club owners could not see the boy from the home town, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. Today this same youngster, Ralph Shinnars, is the property of the New York National league club, bringing four players and cash to Indianapolis by the deal.

A star with the Indianapolis club in 1931 and one of the most promising youngsters ever sent from the A. A. to the majors, Shinnars was sought by several big league clubs.

It was in 1920 that Jack Hendricks, manager of the Indianapolis club, was sending his Indians against the Brewers, that he was told about a foot-footed youngster of the sandlots who could hit at a terrific clip and was stealing more bases than any other two players in the circuit. Hendricks looked him up and decided to give him a chance. He failed to show much during the closing days of the 1929 season. He went South with the Indianapolis club in 1931 and a decided improvement was noticed in his playing.

Hendricks then decided to start him as a regular. He made good from the jump. Playing in Minneapolis last fall, in the last series between the Indians and Millers, Shinnars was the outstanding star. He got a hit, was hit by pitchers and very nearly got on the palls every time he came to bat. He is a speed merchant, one of the fastest that the A. A. has ever boasted. He is six feet tall, weighs 190 pounds and is only twenty-one years old. Last season he played in 104 games, was at bat 683 times, made 226 hits for a percentage of .347.

It's the old story of the athlete not being able to make good in his home town.

Ted Easterly has been signed as a catcher with the Jacksonville team of the Florida State league.

A feature of the spring work of the Brooklyn Dodgers has been the hitting and first base play of Ray Schmundt.

PESKY BED-BUGS

Recommendations of Hotels, Hospitals, Railroad Companies and other public institutions are a guarantee to the public that the safest, quickest and most economical way of ridding the pesky insects is by the use of P. "GO"—ATLANTIC knows that word!

"Go" in gasoline demands not only volatility, but stability—not only the quality for action, but the quality for power as well—not only the capacity to ignite quickly, but also the stamina to "follow through" on each drive of the piston.

Atlantic is that kind of a gasoline. It is full of snap and quickness, but it is also full of vigor and punch. It is a balanced gasoline—a scientific combination of the lighter or more volatile elements needed for easy starting and sure combustion, and the heavier calorific fractions required for high expansive force.

Atlantic needs no coaxing when starting the motor. It needs no urging at the getaway. It asks no frequent gear-shifting help on the hills. And speed! "Hit sixty" or more, if you like, and the peppery "zing" will tell you that Atlantic can keep up with the fastest running motor ever built!

All of which proves that Atlantic is not simply "good" gasoline, but RIGHT gasoline. It has range. It functions perfectly at every speed and temperature and under every load. It isn't wasted under one operating condition and power-skipped under another. Atlantic is correct for present-day motors. And it is always correct—consistently uniform, no matter where or when you buy it.

THESE SALESMANSHIP

The commercial traveler of today could hardly recognize himself in the description of a Yorkshireman who boasted of doing seventy calls a day regularly.

"How do you do it?" asked a friend. "Oh," said he, "I put my head inside a door and say, 'Marble!' I say, 'Marble!' says she, 'Ow!' I say, 'Marble!' says she, 'Marble!' I say, 'Marble!' says she, 'And off I go to the next shop.'—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Undaunted.

"He surely thinks he knows a lot." "That so?" "Yes; I thought I'd stop him last night when I asked him to explain the Einstein theory of relativity." "Did he explain it?" "No; but I'll give him credit for one thing—he actually tried to."—Detroit Free Press.

Waste of Money.

Insurance Agent—I dropped in to remind you that your policy expires tomorrow and to ask you to renew it. Business—Very sorry, sir, but this is the tenth year that I've been insured by your company and nothing has happened, so I've made up my mind to try another company.

Reluctant Admission.

"I never see Harold Heartbreak on the screen," asked Sayde, who presides over the tinware counter.

"Yeah, I've seen him," said Flora Bell, of the soap-operas and cutters. "That fellow's snake, that's what he is." "Yeah, he's a snake all right, but Gawd, what eyes!"

WHITE COLLAR CREW

"He has no ambition." "Aye?" "Not a bit. Refuses to learn a trade and insists on remaining a member of the under-paid white collar brigade."

POLITE INDEED

A wealthy man had engaged a new coachman who was advised to be very polite if he wished to keep his place. Accordingly, when the master visited the stable this dialogue ensued:

Master—Well, John, how are the horses? Coachman—They are quite well, sir, thank you; and how are you?—Scotsman.

Not Registering Well.

"I thought those photographers were complimentary when they sent around to get motion pictures of me," said Senator Sorghum.

"Have you changed your mind?" "Yes. When I saw myself on the screen I became convinced they had played a trick on me to spoil my popularity."

Mild Humor.

"How is the repartee at your boarding house?" "Rather poor."

"You." "Since our star boarder left most of the snappy replies have fallen to an elderly spinster who has been teaching the young lads to shoot for the last thirty years."

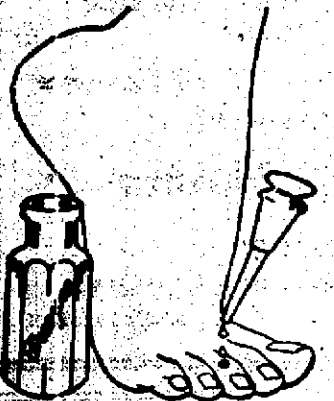

Reason for Faith.

Mrs. Naggs—I believe in profiteers." Mrs. Naggs—Oh, no, Susan, you don't really."

"Oh, yes, I do! Last night Charlie wouldn't write me out a check for a new hat. I laid my hands on his shoulder and wrote until the poor man sat down and wrote that check. Oh, I do believe in profiteers!"

Tarr

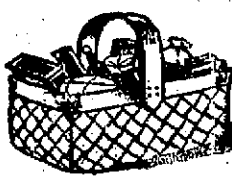

TARR, May 2.—Austin Barron of Coudersport spent Sunday with relatives here.

The baseball uniforms for the Ruffalo baseball team have arrived and practice is being held daily. The team expects to play its opening game of the season about the middle of May.

A baseball meeting was held Friday night among the young boys of the town. A large number of boys were present and baseball matters were discussed. Many boys volunteered to come out to practice and help out a baseball team on the field. Ray Lowmester was elected manager and George Sillman captain. The team will be called the "Alabama Nine," and is so called in honor of its young coach, Lewis Graham, who is widely known among the sport circles as "Alabama." The young lad has had valuable training, having played middle field for the Tarr Independents last year and was a substitute catcher for the team, having caught several of their games when the regular catcher was absent. He was a timely hitter and shows a record of hitting in 75 per cent of the team's games for the season. The team was fortunate in securing his services as a coach. The team will be composed of boys from 15 to 17 years of age. Teams wishing games, write Ray Lowmester, Tarr, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Fox and family of Scottsdale spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lowmester.

Miss Sadie Guseley of Greensburg spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Barney Graham.

AUTOMATIC FOOD AND ICE SAVING WEEK

In households throughout the country economies of all kinds are being discussed.

Among other items of daily expense, the present-day cost of Food-stuffs and Ice can stand a big paring.

The primary object of the nation-wide "AUTOMATIC" FOOD AND ICE SAVING WEEK is to demonstrate that a substantial saving can be effected, in both foods and ice.

All this week we will hold these demonstrations.

We will show why and how foods placed in an ordinary refrigerator will "sweat"; will become "soft"; will often become mildewed and tainted—which not only causes the waste and loss of the food, but often places the health of every member of the family in danger.

During these demonstrations we will also show just why and how much ice is wasted—how you can get along with less ice.

This is an educational event. This demonstration will interest every housewife who is concerned about keeping all foodstuffs sweet, cold and wholesome—about keeping her ice bill down this Summer.

Whether or not immediate sales of AUTOMATIC are made, is not the question. We want every woman, every man, to know about modern, scientific refrigeration and preservation of foodstuffs — at no additional cost than if an ordinary refrigerator were used.

Your attendance is requested. We are sure you will be glad you took advantage of this invitation. Welcome!

75% OF HOUSEWIVES SOAK EVERYDAY CLOTHES

What does soaking mean to you? Three out of every four housewives always loosen the dirt by letting the clothes soak before they start washing. With the ordinary soaps, this helped a little but there was still a lot of rubbing to be done. Rinso, an entirely new kind of soap, loosens and dissolves every bit of dirt, without the slightest injury to the clothes. Soak your clothes an hour or more in Rinso and the dirt rinses right out, all but the most stubborn places and those need only a light rubbing.

Rinso is the only soap you need for the entire regular family wash. You don't need any other soap—nor any washing powder with Rinso. Women who are using it say their clothes are spotless and last longer.

At the Theatres

THE BOISSON.

THE BOISSON.—Known as "The Heart of the Century" is the feature attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre. The Donaghy-Carpenter attraction is not merely a "light film." It is in every sense of the word, a tremendous human drama—a drama of real, pulsating, twentieth-century life, with the broadest kind of appeal to every class and condition of humanity. That this is so was demonstrated conclusively by the complete nature of the vast and singularly orderly crowd that eagerly paid from $5 to $10 to play a small part in what must be ranked as one of the very best. In addition to the actual contest itself, these pictures show all the delights of daily training for months in advance, and all the movements of the two principals up to the time they entered the ring. The battle, blow by blow and round by round, is shown in marvelous close-up motion pictures secured at the ring-side.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE FOURTEENTH LOVER," with Viola Dana, in the stellar role, is being shown today as the feature picture. "Nobody on the screen can play a certain type of role better than Viola Dana, the Metro star. Given her proper opportunity as a reckless, devil-may-care, vivacious flapper, eager to seize life as a dazzling adventure, audaciously intent upon extracting the quintessence of excitement from it, yet tenderly appreciative of real human values, and Viola Dana romps through the part with a joyous abandon that brooks of no rivalry.

"The Fourteenth Lover" is a merry little comedy, concerning the adventures of a reckless young debutante who is unable to decide among her 13 suitors and who falls in love with the gardener of her father's estate. The fact that the gardener doesn't want her drives her to try to win his affections and her path to happiness bumps along in breathlessly exciting fashion until the last scene. Miss Dana was never more brightly, vivacious and charming than in this picture, and she has the support of an excellent cast that includes Jack Muhlhall, Theodore von Eltz, Kate Lester, Albert Lee, Frederick Vroom and Fanny Dean.

Tomorrow and Thursday, "I Can Explain" will be shown.

THE ORPHEUM.

"TILLIE" the leading attraction at this theatre today, presents Mary Miles Minter in the lead role. "Tillie" presents Miss Minter as a little lass with a hunted look in her eyes; "Tillie" brought up in a strict Mennonite community; her father a stern and grasping personality who denies her all those things that belong to a maid just emerging into womanhood. The plot concerns an intrigue over a $25,000 bequest providing the girl becomes a Mennonite—and it includes a young man who gives the girl's starved mind a glimpse of life beyond her narrow-minded confines. Mary Miles Minter challenges and secures your interest from the very start—and from start to finish you are held in the grip of dramatic events which shape the character of the central player. Strongly dramatic—yet the production is not without its humor. In the opinion of this writer there has never been a "Tillie" scene than the marriage of the hero and the heroine in a Mennonite elder stuck in the mud.

Tomorrow and Thursday Ethel Clayson will be seen in "Sham."

Peters scowled viciously at her. "You can tell all that at the inquest," he snapped. "I've got orders to bring you in, too. Get out of the way!"

As that the superhuman tension that held Wilton's gaze in bonds seemed to snap. His ears were ringing, and a spotted mist floated before his eyes. Through this he saw Peters an indistinct distance away, the revolver, now hardly larger than a pencil, pointing at his head. Behind the sergeant he saw Anderson, a doll-like figure with a toy pan in his hand. He leaped at Peters, heard the weapon discharged and was conscious of the sting of powder on his forehead and a commotion in his hair.

Peters had shot to kill but the weapon, the least bit diverted by Molly's intervention had been reaimed at Wilton's forehead a little hurriedly and he had forgotten that the strong ammunition, of which complaint had frequently been made by the police at the time, was apt to throw the bullet high at short distances.

Wilton shot his uninjured arm forward with a vicious swing that caught the sergeant on the cheek and sent him staggering backward. But the force of the blow communicated to Wilton's left shoulder, wrenched the wound and forced a groan of pain from his lips. Peters reeled, regained his balance, and rushed forward again, swinging the revolver aloft, butt forward, in his hand.

With his powerful build he could have delivered a blow that would have crushed Wilton's skull. But before the blow fell Anderson had raised his pan and brought it down adroitly upon the sergeant's head, cutting the scalp to the bone and drenching the man with the boiling grease.

With a scream of pain Peters stumbled forward, letting the revolver fall from his hand, slipped in the grease that had begun to ooze along the floor, and fell full length in the planks, where he lay writhing in anguish, and trying to clear his eyes of the melted fat and the blood that streamed down his forehead.

Instantly Molly stooped, snatched up the weapon, which had fallen at her feet, and covered the constable, who had swung himself upon Wilton again. Molly stopped dead and threw his hands up automatically.

"Get over there!" said Molly bristling, pointing toward the wall behind the sergeant.

Molly obeyed immediately and took his post against the wall, the picture of confusion. Peters struggled slowly to his feet. His face and neck-jacket were covered with a film of grease, over which the blood from his wound was trickling. The tables were turned with dramatic completeness.

"You know what this means!" spluttered the sergeant, trying to clear the fat from his eyes.

"I do, and I'll take my chance," answered Wilton, gritting his teeth at the pain from his injured arm. The wound did not seem to have reopened, but either his blow or the grasp of the constable had displaced the broken ends of the bone, and he could feel them grating together at his slightest movement.

"Keep your hands up, both of you!" he ordered. "Give me the revolver, Molly! Get a rope, Anderson!"

"Yes, I guess I have," answered the sergeant. He stepped to a packing case behind the stove, and brought out a short coil of manila which, with a kitchen knife, he sliced into four or five lengths.

"I thank I tie them to that beam," he said, indicating one of the vertical supports of the wooden shack.

"All right, Anderson," said Wilton. "It is so that they can sit down. They'll have some time to wait and they may get tired of standing."

Molly took the revolver from Molly and slipped it into his pocket. Peters let loose a string of vicious oaths as Anderson proceeded to trans him up, but neither man offered any resistance.

The constable stepped back and looked at his work with critical satisfaction.

"I thank you get to Clayton by tomorrow night, all right, Mr. Carruthers," he said with droll complacency, putting some more potatoes in the pan.

"I thank their elation, Molly and Wilton could eat but little, while ing down the food, which they could hardly masticate with gulps of coffee. They were glad to get out into the air. Wilton made his way to the cache and looked it and took out some frozen fish for the dogs, which were giving tongue vigorously inside the stable.

"Here Papillon!" he called. "I can't make out what's the matter with those men, lying in their blankets at this hour, with the dogs howling for their breakfast," he said to Molly indignantly. "They must have known I'd feed them before starting on a run like the one we've got before us. I suppose they heard the row and got scared back to bed," he added.

But no answer came to his call, and suddenly Molly uttered a cry and pointed. On the other side of the stable were the tracks of a sleigh, obliterated at the entrance by the falling snow, which had drifted against the building.

Wilton wrenched the door open. His sleigh and the dogs were gone, together with the rifle, shotgun and trunk-compass. The half-breds had deserted during the night.

"They must have guessed that those men meant to arrest you, or else they heard them talking," said Molly,

But Wilton had hurried to the horse stalls, separated from the dog stable by a stout door. He breathed a deep sigh of relief. The second sleigh was there. For a moment the thought of possibilities that made his heart almost stand still.

He came back again and resolute. "There's something pretty deep in all this business," he said. "I know why the men ran away. The sergeant gave them the tip to I saw him talking to Papillon last night. And that's the reason why they wouldn't stop in the shack—because they meant to run. I suppose the policemen was afraid that they would make trouble or try to help us. But I can't fathom it. Those men acted like criminals. That's not the way of the police."

He clenched his fist and swore under his breath.

"I'll have those fellows hooked for this, if I have to go to Oldman," he said. And I'm going to run down those brutes if it takes me a lifetime. I tell you this Molly, it's all bound up with Joe in some way or other, and Tom Brown's at the bottom of it."

But first—remember Molly said Molly softly laying his hand on Wilton's shoulder.

Even the slight touch made him wince for the pain of his broken arm. He realized that in all probability he was in for a long spell of illness. He knew that the bone would have to be reset. His head felt strangely light, and the ground seemed to slope downhill from him in all directions. But he shut his teeth hard and would not let Molly guess. And a feverish energy took possession of him. He must hold out for the journey, until after the sharp holders' meeting—until he had told Kirt's.

Well take the police sled and start at once, he said to Molly. "It looks as if a storm was brewing. I'll tell Anderson to let those fellows go about noon and I'll leave the revolver with him."

Inside the shack they found the policemen eating their breakfast on the floor with the caretaker diligently serving them. They were still bound but their hands were free.

"Turn them loose at noon, Anderson," Wilton said. "Give them enough slush-bang to carry them on their way. Just turn them loose and see that they haven't any dangerous weapons to do you mischief with."

"You bet I take care for that," grinned the sergeant.

Wilton let Anderson harness the dogs to save his strength for the journey. In a few minutes the sled was ready with the sleigh carrying Joe's body attached behind and the huskies harnessed singly, dells in the snow, awaiting the command to march.

The sun was just showing above the horizon when Wilton and Molly started on the second stage of their journey to Clayton.

STORIES OF
GREAT INDIANS

By Elmo Scott Watson

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union
KING HENDRICK TRADES AN EMPIRE FOR A COAT

NO OTHER white man in history ever had more influence over the red man than Sir William Johnson, reboil superintendent of Indian affairs. At his baronial mansions in western New York, "the Hall" and "The Castle," he received members of the frequent confederacy as equals and it was his influence which made them allies of the English instead of the French during the French and Indian war.

One of the chiefs who frequently visited Johnson Hall was a Mohawk named King Hendrick. One day Sir William received from England some richly-embroidered clothing. King Hendrick was present when it was unpacked and the gaily attire caught the fancy of the red man. The next morning he approached Sir William. "Brother, I had a dream," he announced. "Indeed," replied Johnson. "What did my red brother dream?" "I dreamed that you gave me one of those fine coats," said the Mohawk and Sir William, greatly amused, gave him the garment.

Some time later Johnson visited Hendrick's camp. "They smoked and ate in silence," he said. "I had a dream last night," finally stated Johnson. "What did my pale-faced brother dream?" asked the chief. "I dreamed that this tract of land was mine," and Sir William described a square of the richest land in the Mohawk valley, containing nearly 100,000 acres. Hendrick was completely taken aback by the enormity of the request, but he could not be outdone in generosity. After a moment he said: "Brother, the land is yours." "But," he added earnestly, "you must not dream again!" By playing Indian on Hendrick, Sir William had acquired land which made him one of the largest landholders in the colonies.

During the French and Indian war Johnson persuaded King Hendrick to join him in marching against an invading force of 2,000 French under General Dieskau, who was coming from Canada. On September 8, 1755, they met the French at Lake George. When Johnson decided to detach a part of his force for a flank attack he asked King Hendrick if he thought a certain number would be enough. "If they are to fight, they are too few," replied the chief. "If they are to be killed, they are too many." Acting upon this advice, Sir William kept his force together and attacked. A great battle followed in which King Hendrick was killed while fighting bravely at the head of his warriors.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Kasha cloth makes charming costumes for country wear.

Black jet ball-heads are used a great deal as trimming.

Conservative silhouettes lead in blouse styles, with the peasant outline much modified.

In cottons, dainty keeps its place; values are steadily growing in popularity and cotton crepe appears as a novelty item.

Suede pockets and wigwag fringes on tweeds; velvet backs to peaked revers collars and lapels; fur or dachshund flays have also been seen. "Feet" hats with soft, bell-shaped crowns have the brims slashed in one way or another and overlapped to simulate quills, the edges bound in ribbon.

Lace is playing a large part in the making and trimming of hats, and some dainty smart little models of hair braid are trimmed almost wholly in softly draped lace veils.

Chamois gloves are made with trimmings of kid. Sometimes the cuff of the chamois gauntlet is made with cut-work, beneath which shows a pattern in the darker kid.

COCK FIGHTING OLD "SPORT"

Practiced in China Since the Earliest Recorded Times, Its Introduction in the West.

Cock fighting is probably the most ancient sport in the world. Known since the earliest antiquity in China, it was also popular in India, the home of the wild jungle cock, from which these hercest of all feathered fighters were probably originally bred. From India it spread to Egypt and all through Asia Minor.

Its introduction to the West through the Greeks came about in a most dramatic manner. The story goes that Themistocles called a halt on the march of his men against the Persians because he happened to see a pair of game-cocks fighting. To the group about him he made a great speech, admonishing them to meet their enemies with the same spirit. In commemoration of the victory Athens had public cock fights each year thereafter, and from this somewhat solemn beginning it rapidly became a popular sport.

Earlier mention of it shows that there was no sentiment against it, since one William Pitt Stephen tells in some of the "cocking matches" arranged by the masters at boys' schools, especially to celebrate Shrove Tuesday. Henry VIII had a cockpit built in his palace at Whitehall.

Ambassadors of the Air.

For some time France has had a new diplomatic function, that of ambassador of the air. And for that delicate function, for which not every one is fit, a woman, Mlle. Adrienne Bolland, has been nominated. This intrepid aviatrix was the first, it will be remembered, who flew over the Cordillera of the Andes. This feat made her famous in South America. This renown led the French government to accredit Mlle. Bolland to the Republic of Argentina, where she will represent France in all matters concerning aviation. Mlle. Bolland has left for Buenos Ayres, equipped with all diplomatic powers.—New York Tribune.

Good Taste.

"Any person of luxurious tastes would rather any day see a game of baseball in preference to one of football."

"Why of luxurious tastes?"
"Isn't a diamond more of a luxury than a gridiron?"
